CONFERENCE & AWARDS 2016

DOORSTEP SPORT FOR GOOD

WEDNESDAY 13TH AND THURSDAY 14TH APRIL
AT WARWICK UNIVERSITY

INTRODUCTION

The sporting landscape is evolving throughout the UK. The Government published its new strategy for sport in December 2015 and this conference is tailored specifically to help everyone that attends understand and plan to take advantage of new opportunities and building upon their existing success.

Sport Wales working with stakeholders across the sector has been developing a new approach to Community Sport. In Wales, StreetGames has been working in partnership with Sport Wales and the Welsh Government's Communities First programme to deliver sporting opportunities in local communities which meet Health, Economic and Education outcomes through the delivery of local Doorstep Sport. StreetGames has secured investment into Communities First clusters for sport, including a £690,000 Sport Wales Lottery grant to fund an Us Girls project. StreetGames is now active in 44 out of the 52 local clusters and is on track to meet the agreed outcomes and make a real difference to young lives in local communities.

Since 2012, StreetGames has been working with community organisations to take sport to the doorstep of young people living in Scotland's most deprived communities. The 2014 Glasgow Commonwealth Games provided a fantastic platform to grow the network in Scotland. It now has 38 StreetMarked projects covering 12 Local Authority Areas including: Glasgow, Edinburgh, West Dunbartonshire, North Ayrshire, South Ayrshire, Falkirk, Stirling, North Lanarkshire, Inverclyde, Dundee, Aberdeen and Fife. Together the projects reach over 3,000 young people aged 14-25 every week.

In England, the launch of the new DCMS strategy is good news for increasing access to sport and its benefits for disabled people, women and girls, older people and young people in disadvantaged communities. 'Sporting Future: a new strategy for an active nation' aligns Government policy with successful approaches to increasing the number of people who are physically active and with approaches that successfully maximise sport's contribution to changing young lives. The strategy is a chance to consolidate the good work carried out by the StreetGames network and many similar organisations.

“... we will, in future, prioritise work done to engage those who do sport less than the population as a whole. We will make most progress by focusing on particular sections of society that face common barriers to taking part and who take part in sport and physical activity at below average levels at the moment (for example, those from lower socio-economic groups, women and disabled people). We will ensure that investment is specifically set aside for this purpose.”

CONFERENCE THEMES

The themes of the StreetGames conference are the issues dominated by the new sport strategy and the changing landscape of Doorstep Sport.

DOORSTEP SPORT FOR GOOD AND ACTIVATING UNDER-ACTIVE YOUNG PEOPLE

These sessions explain strategies to support participation in both new and non-traditional sports, address young people's desire to move freely between sports and explore ways in which to target those under-represented. Young people increasingly need sport to fit in with their hectic lives. Industry experts will use the latest research to show how working within the new sport strategy the decline in the number of people who regularly take part in sport can be reversed and sport can be used as a tool to achieve positive social outcomes.

DOORSTEP SPORT FOR GOOD AND YOUNG PEOPLE'S PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT AND RESILIENCE

This theme will explore how to use sport to engage and develop disadvantaged young people, promote inclusion and support them to develop employability skills. Making a successful transition from school to Further Education or to work can be hard. It is young people with resilience, confidence and a positive vision of how life can be that are most likely to succeed.

DOORSTEP SPORT FOR GOOD AND YOUNG PEOPLE'S WELLBEING

This theme looks at how Doorstep Sport can make a positive contribution to physical and mental wellbeing including helping young people experiencing difficulties. Sport has a huge potential to break down barriers. It can bring people of all ages, socio-economic backgrounds and cultures together. These workshops will discuss strategies to ensure everyone can flourish while addressing all forms of intolerance. The importance of sport organisations being diverse and inclusive to provide equal opportunities for everyone will be addressed.

DOORSTEP SPORT FOR GOOD AND COMMUNITY AND SOCIAL DEVELOPMENT

This theme looks at the double benefit of sport, the positive effect it has on both the participants and society as a whole. The power of volunteering and youth action and the difference this can make to the lives of young people by helping to develop confidence and skills to improve employability. The sessions will explore the direct impact that sport can have on the health and safety of the local community and how organisations can use this impact to sustain their local activity.

EQUIPPING THE WORKFORCE TO DELIVER DOORSTEP SPORT FOR GOOD

Learn what is being done to ensure that sports coaching is as effective as possible at the grassroots level and coaches are given the necessary training. The sessions will discuss the importance of ensuring that sport organisations are diverse and inclusive, providing equal opportunities for everyone and the ability to continually adapt to the needs of young people.

SUSTAINING DOORSTEP SPORT FOR GOOD: GETTING READY FOR THE FUTURE

Financial sustainability is vital for local delivery organisations. Sessions will explore new models of social investment in sport and creative and innovative ways to attract funding, including applying for small grants and loans and crowd funding. In addition, experts will offer new and insightful ways to form commercial partnerships that work.

WORKSHOPS & MINI KEYNOTES DESCRIPTIONS

SESSION 1

Successfully applying for small grants ●

With 66% of all applications to the Sport England small grants fund successful and a wide range of funders offering grants up to £10,000, making small grants applications is a very effective way of funding Doorstep Sport.

This one hour workshop will introduce the sources of small grants available and how to select the most appropriate funder to maximise the chances of success. It will also reveal the secrets that time and again make the difference between success and failure.

For: Project managers

Personal development through 'Empowering Coaching' ●

Personal development through 'Empowering Coaching'. Over the last two years StreetGames has been working with the University of Birmingham to deliver and evaluate an Empowering Coaching™ intervention for Doorstep Sport coaches and the young people they work with.

The Empowering Coaching™ approach is a theory-based workshop designed to educate coaches on how they can deliver their session in a way that supports the young people's motivation, enjoyment, confidence and engagement to keep them coming back. This session will look at the final results of the project, how Doorstep Sport Clubs and grassroots coaches can learn from and implement the findings.

For: Project managers / Face to face workers

Preventing drop-off ●

Most Doorstep Sport providers attract a similar attendance profile. About 40% of participants have been previously inactive and only 14% are members of another sports club. There is though a large drop off: 30% of participants attend fewer than 5 sessions before they disappear, but 50% attend regularly for more than a year.

This workshop will explore the importance of keeping accurate registers and how to develop a system that flags up those at risk of dropping out. In addition, the session will look at how to shape strategies to recruit more inactive young people and how to make sessions so good that more participants will keep coming back.

For: Project managers / Face to face workers

Reducing anti - social behaviour through sport ●

The Home Office is funding a national demonstration project which supports Police and Crime Commissioners to explore effective ways to reduce Anti-Social Behaviour through sport. This workshop will share the findings of the projects involved in the programme and will discuss how to demonstrate to other Police and Crime Commissioners that Doorstep Sport is worthy of their investment.

For: Project managers

Understanding sporting habits ● ●

The 2CV market research agency is looking at how disadvantaged young people consume sport and how sport fits into their lives. Their research tells us about participant journeys and the workshop will discuss how to use the information to increase the number of young people who are active and how to keep them active.

This workshop is for delegates who want to know more about how young people see sport and its role in their lives.

For: Project managers / Face to face workers

Mini Keynote - Activating the inactive ●

Activating the Inactive and changing people's behaviour, this from a population perspective becomes the issue for sports policy and practice. Do practitioners and policy makers really understand the nature of this area to the extent that they are able to effect change?

For: Project managers / Face to face workers

SESSION 2

Public Health Commissioning - 10 top tips for successful bids ●

Young people's mental health and childhood obesity are top priorities for local Health & Wellbeing Commissioners.

This workshop will discuss how to effectively communicate the value of Doorstep Sport to public health commissioners and how to understand the health policy framework. It will look at commissioners' needs and how to craft successful funding proposals. Delegates who have successfully secured past commissions will be invited to share their experiences.

For: Project managers

Doorstep Sport sustainability ● ●

The funding environment is changing fast. 42% of respondents to the 2015 StreetGames survey fear their project is not keeping up and feel unconfident about the financial future of their project over the next 2 years.

This workshop shares good practice from across the network and details proven ways to make Doorstep Sport sustainable. In addition, delegates will be introduced to the StreetGames Development Toolkit, the new planning aid for increased sustainability.

For: Project managers

Young volunteer leaders - the value to the young person ● ●

Learning to lead can make a profound difference to young people's confidence and attainment. This workshop will show the value of providing well designed volunteering opportunities in Doorstep Sport to young people. It will look at the best recruitment and retention tactics and identify the type of support that allows young leaders to flourish.

StreetGames Young Volunteers will join the workshop and discuss their experiences and the impact volunteering has had on their lives.

For: Project managers / Face to face workers

Preventing drop-off amongst girls ● ●

Many projects adopt the Us Girls approach to match the preferences of those girls who prefer to exercise away from lads. Among mixed Doorstep Sport provision only 26% of regular participants are female.

The workshop will explore how an organisation can develop working partnerships that enable girls to access programmes in a co-ordinated way across different community providers. Stories about inactive girls who have been helped to find an active lifestyle will be shared, and the session will identify the commonalities that make for successful programmes. Finally, the success of Sport England's This Girl Can campaign and the Us Girls programme in Wales will be explored to see what lessons can be learned.

For: Project managers / Face to face workers

Understanding youth mental health issues ●

Young people's mental health and wellbeing is a subject of increasing concern. Over 50% of long-term mental health conditions are established by the age of 14 and 75% by the age of 24. Young people from disadvantaged backgrounds are three times more likely to develop mental health problems.

This workshop is an introduction to the issue and starts the discussion about how Doorstep Sport can help young people who may be experiencing difficulties. Projects will share good practice and discuss the type of training needed by face-to-face workers to help them to identify young people who are in difficulties.

The workshop is for delegates who need to make sure their projects offer adequate support for all participants.

For: Project managers

Mini Keynote - Friendship is the key to women's participation in sport ● ●

This session looks at the social side of sport, the complex dynamic of female friendship groups and how Doorstep Sport can make good use of this insight. Dr Nicola Eccles from Leeds Trinity University will unveil new research which demonstrates that activating a whole friendship group is the effective way to securing young women's participation in sport.

For: Project managers / Face to face workers

SESSION 3

Team StreetGames - Local, rapid fire fundraising ●

Does your project need £1k for something special?

This workshop shares easy and effective ways to involve young people in fundraising campaigns, and will discuss crowd funding, bag packing campaigns, duck races and sponsored runs.

For: Project managers / Face to face workers

Volunteering & social action - the value to the Doorstep Sport project ● ●

When young people lead Doorstep Sport their enthusiasm and novel approaches make sessions fresh and welcoming.

The workshop profiles how young leaders can have a major impact on Doorstep Sport and will hear from the young people who have changed their projects through their volunteering.

For: Face to face workers and project managers who are starting over with social action

Inclusive Doorstep Sport ●

There are approximately 9.4 million disabled people in England, accounting for 18% of the population. Amongst young people aged 16-25 years around 7% have a disability. Within the network about 5% of Doorstep Sport participants declare themselves to have a disability. This workshop brings together national experts in disability sport to discuss how best to integrate disabled young people to Doorstep Sport as equals. EFDS will share their approach called, 'Talk to me' and Disability Sport Wales will explain how their national approach has led to over one million sports opportunities being available to disabled people.

For: Project managers / Face to face workers

Understanding and appreciating how we are different and dealing with it ●

This workshop looks at how our understanding and attitudes impact on our own wellbeing and other peoples all the time and how we approach what makes us all different is significant.

Led by the national charity Autism and ADHD this workshop will look at how difference can make us feel and what we choose to do with that feeling. It will be a chance for projects delivering Doorstep Sport to develop their understanding around this topic and also understand some of the barriers young people with Autism and ADHD may face in engaging with new activities.

Starting with our understanding and attitude towards difference can really make a big impact on the way we deliver Doorstep Sport.

For: Project managers / Face to face workers

Safe & well - appropriate safeguarding for Doorstep Sport ●

This workshop is based upon a youth empowerment project led by Edge Hill University aimed at combatting sexual exploitation, harassment and abuse in and through sport. Edge Hill worked with the Rugby Football League and Survivors Manchester to combine academic research with expertise from front-line practice to enable the transfer of knowledge and skills between young people in sports contexts. The workshop will take elements of this activity based youth-led workshop to explore safeguarding in a sports context.

For: Project managers

Mini Keynote - Behavioural change ● ●

Demos are Britain's leading cross-party think tank. Their research, Service Nation 2020, discusses how high quality social action programmes benefit both the participants and society as a whole. Demos call this the 'double benefit'.

This session looks at how social action programmes can help young people develop employability skills and expand their networks and ambitions while improving the quality of life in their neighbourhood.

The keynote is for delegates who want to begin a youth social action programme or who need to know how to take their programme to the next level.

For: Project managers / Face to face workers

SESSION 4

Active for life - CLUB1 ●

The way people participate in sport and physical activity changes as their lives change.

Even active young people grow up to become inactive adults. There are many reasons for this drop out: friendship groups break up; there is a lack of easily accessible provision for adults; work and families and the pressures of adult life. What are popular with adults though are 'solo sports', which can be done alone or within a small family or friendship group.

Over the last nine months 150 Doorstep Sport Clubs have tested how best to broaden their offer to include these habit-for-life sports. This workshop discusses the lessons learnt from the efforts to introduce swimming, gym and running to Doorstep Sport and how they can be applied more widely.

For: Project managers / Face to face workers

Implementing the coaching plan ●

This workshop follows on from the Key Note: Coaching Plan for England.

It will give delegates the opportunity to discuss the findings and how the coach can improve playing experiences and keep people playing by understanding the motivations and needs of the individual.

For: Project managers / Face to face workers

Doorstep Sport apprenticeships - the new Community Sport & Health Activator Apprenticeship ● ●

The Government intends to create three million apprenticeships. But employers in sport and active recreation report there is a gap in the training on offer. They struggle to find the right course of learning for apprentices who need the outreach and youth work skills that make up a good Doorstep Sport worker.

StreetGames chairs the group that is working up a new apprenticeship qualification to fill that gap. It is called the Community Sport and Health Activator. It will be ready for use by autumn 2016.

This workshop will discuss how to make use of the opportunity to train up Doorstep Sport participants as apprenticeships.

For: Project managers

Preparing young people for employment and further education ● ●

Making a successful transition from school to Further Education or to work can be hard. It is young people with resilience, confidence and a positive vision of how life can be that are most likely to succeed.

This workshop will identify the characteristics of NEET-hood and demonstrate how Doorstep Sport can be used to help young people to develop the skills and characteristics to succeed.

For: Project managers / Face to face workers

Chief Executive policy discussion group ●

Following the launch of 'Sporting Future' strategy in England and the changing Welsh landscape this roundtable discussion for senior managers in the public sector and the leaders of social enterprises will explore the future of Doorstep Sport.

For: Senior managers

Mini Keynote – Building resilience ●

TBC

For: Project managers / Face to face workers

SESSION 5

Widening access - The National Governing Bodies of sport ● ●

The trends, preferences and sporting needs of young people change over time. National Governing Bodies are now introducing new projects and programmes to attract and engage young people in their sport.

This session provides an opportunity to hear from NGBs about their plans to make their sport more accessible for inactive people and to discover where Doorstep Sport fits in.

For: Project managers

The Chartered Institute for the Management of Sport and Physical Activity (CIMSPA) ●

Doctors have the British Medical Association to protect their standing and regulate professional practice; solicitors have the Law Society. The Chartered Institute for the Management of Sport and Physical Activity (CIMSPA) received its Royal Charter in 2012. Its role is to maintain professional standards in the world of active leisure. In this workshop the leading team from CIMSPA will explain their mission and their plans to reorganise our professional education.

For: Project managers who want to improve the status of sport and active leisure management

The Volunteer programme and traineeships ●

StreetGames' evaluations show that becoming a full-time volunteer or a trainee can transform a young person's outlook and confidence. These benefits are most often felt when a supportive project worker helps the trainee to learn and develop on the job.

This workshop will explain the mechanics of taking on a full-time volunteer and hears from young people who have benefited from taking responsibility within their project. The workshop is for projects that are thinking about taking on a full-time volunteer in the near future.

For: Project managers

Improving the capacity of the workforce to activate the inactive and deliver sport for good ●

Projects need staff with the right skills to activate inactive teenagers and to deliver sport for good. This workshop supports project managers to understand the range of training available to them and will include an opportunity to plan and meet the training needs of their paid and volunteer workforce.

For: Project managers

Shaping funding applications for interventions that generate community safety, health and employability outcomes ● ●

Funding is available for applicants who can effectively demonstrate how their proposal will deliver wide social outcomes such as educational attainment, reduced risk taking behaviours, improved health and increased community safety and employability skills.

This workshop will take delegates step by step through the essential components of a successful funding bid, and delegates will come away with an understanding of what evidence they need to support their bid and where they can find it.

For: Project managers

Mini Keynote – The value of out of home experiences ● ●

Taking young people away from home on an overnight trip can be a daunting prospect. This mini keynote will help delegates understand the preparations and plans that are required for residential stays, European exchanges and holiday camps. It will cover fundraising, safety concerns and the wellbeing of the young people.

The session will also look at StreetGames' plans for summer 2016.
